

What do I need to do when I travel in my country of residence?

As from January 1st 2016, your Interrail Global Pass is also valid for two trips in the country in which you reside/live, or you have citizenship for, provided that this country is an Interrail member country*. This is the country that is printed on your ticket in the top right corner (see image below).

You can make one outbound journey to the border in order to start using your Global Pass and one inbound journey at the end of your travels. The following rules apply for these two trips:

- You may travel with more than one train, provided the trips are within the same day and in the direction of the border or airport.
- You must fill out on the Pass Cover the dates on which you will use the outbound* and inbound journey. If you do not travel in your country of residence, you do not have to fill in this part of the Travel Diary (see image 1.).
- You must ensure each outbound and inbound trip is also registered in the Travel Diary section on your pass cover (See image 2.).
